STUDENT CONDUCT
(Principal's Authority)

The principal of each school in the district shall draw up rules and regulations, consistent with existing district policy, which are essential to the proper operation of his/her school. He should consult with the faculty members and students in the preparation of rules of conduct so that the views of all may be obtained.

These rules and regulations shall constitute a student handbook which shall be printed and distributed to all students at the beginning of each school year.

The student handbook, when approved by the Board, shall be the official policy of the district governing the conduct of students and the operation of the school. This is not intended to mean that all schools in the district must be operated by exactly the same student handbook.
